

Kaj Winther

Head of department
Department of Clinical Biochemistry
Frederiksberg Hospital University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Academic Career

- Graduated School of Medicine, University of Copenhagen, 1980
- License to practice medicine in Denmark, 1986
- Associate Professor, University of Copenhagen, 1990
- Master of Science, 1991
- Head of Department, Department of Clinical Chemistry, Glostrup Hospital, University of Copenhagen, 1992

Research Interests

- Osteoarthritis and osteoporosis
- Thrombolysis and haemostasis
- Clinical research with close contact to Ethical Committees
- New drugs and new therapeutic trends in already existing drug therapies

Management and Leadership Experience

- Initiator of Institute of Clinical Research Inc. since 1982
- Consultant to the medical industry since 1984
- Founder of the Clinical Research Center at Frederiksberg Hospital, University of Copenhagen
- Founder of the Clinical Research Center at Hvidovre Hospital, University of Copenhagen

Teaching Responsibilities

- Training of nurses, laboratory assistants and students in laboratory technique and coagulation disorders
- Training of scientific workers from the medical industry especially aiming on thrombo-prophylactic therapy
- Consultant to universities and medical industries and different doctor's organisations regarding thrombosis and haemostasis, research on stress and herbal remedies

Professional Society Membership:

- Danish Medical Association
- Danish Society of Clinical Pharmacology
- European Society of Clinical Investigation
- International Society on Thrombosis and Haemostasis
- The New York Academy of Science

